Missionary Speaks To Chaffin Circle

Donald Hawk, a missionary from Honduras, was the chief speaker at the meeting of the Chaffin Community Circle Thursday evening at the school building.

President Michael Helfrich announced that the annual PTA achievement meeting would be held at Bloomingburg on April 17. He urged everyone to take part in the meeting.

The Circle plans to hold an Easter food sale on April 8. Mrs. Katherine Haines was named in charge of the sale.

Circle members also decided to buy electric clocks for the school. It was announced that the annual election of officers would be held at the Circle's final meeting next month.

Mr. Hawk told about his work with the natives, teaching them to read and write. He also described their methods of farming by hand.

Patrolman M. E. Brickles was also present at the meeting and gave a short talk on "Safety". He also informed the group about a new law requiring farmers to have permits to move their equipment, such as combines, cornpickers and balers, on the highways.

Supt. of County Schools W. J. Hilly attended the meeting and spoke briefly.

A program committee of Delbert Smith, Archie McCullough and Leonard Blessing was named for next month's meeting. On the social committee for the final meeting are Mrs. Clyde Carman, chairman, Mrs. Harriet Van Dyke, Mrs. Leonard Blessing, Mrs. Joe Campbell and Mrs. Katherine Haines.

instead U. S. farm surpluses valued at that amount.

Alarmed over possible effects of the cash cutback on the domestic farm price support program, farm state members got behind a proposal to restore the money but tie it firmly to open-market purchase of U. S. crop surpluses.

The plan was contained in an amendment to the bill prepared by Reps. Cooley (D-NC) and Poage (D-Texas). Cooley is chairman of the House Agriculture Committee.

Farm members contend the surplus-for-cash provision would take the Economic Cooperation Administration out of the market for American agricultural products, and at the same time subject the farmers to subsidy charges.

"This plan puts the burden and odium of foreign aid on the farmers, and leaves critics able to say this is an additional farm subsidy which it is not," Cooley said.

Teen-Age Bandits

The store, jumped into the car and drove south on the Leesburg Road at top speed.

License Number Noted
Theobald hurried out the front door and noted the car license numbers.

He immediately telephoned to Police Chief Hiser at Leesburg and Sheriff Orland Hays.

Sheriff Hays notified the state Highway Patrol and started for the scene. State Highway Patrolmen throughout the area also started converging toward the area.

It was only a short time until the car with Hoyer and the girl drove into Leesburg and slowed down for the warning light where U. S. 62 enters the main street.

As the car slowed down Hoyer stepped out with gun ready and commanded the driver to halt and put up his hands.

It was at that moment Tom Parrett slowed down at the intersection. Hiser handed him a gun and asked him to keep the pair covered while he searched them.

Hiser took two guns off of the boy, handcuffed the pair together and took them to the town jail. He then called for Sheriff Hays, who was located by radio. He went on to Leesburg.

Both Jailed Here
The two were brought back to Washington, C. H. the boy being placed in the county jail and the girl in the woman's jail in the city building.

They admitted stealing the car they were driving. The girl produced the $19 taken from Theobald.

In the girl's possession was found a drawing she had made imitating a poster offering $10,000 reward for the arrest of "Bank Robber Hoyer". It also mentioned other crimes, such as murder. She admitted making the drawing to "kid" her youthful friend.

This drawing was turned over to Chief Hiser as a souvenir.

Sheriff Hays notified the Bellefonte police and they are to come after the stolen car.

Girl Stole Guns
Sheriff Hays said the girl admitted stealing the two guns from a place where she had worked. The officers found 150 rounds of ammunition in the car and an extra set of Pennsylvania license plates.

The Bellefonte police chief said neither of the pair had ever been in any trouble so far as he knew.

After conferring with Prosecutor Clark Wickensimer, Sheriff Hays said he would file charges here and prosecute the pair in the local courts.

As both are juveniles they will go before Probate Judge Rell G. Allen, it is indicated.

The Theobald store was held up New Year's Eve by masked bandits, who obtained some $200 in cash. They were never found.

Theobald was not in the store at that time.

Grain Market

CHICAGO, March 24—(AP)—Grain prices moved up sharply in active buying on the Board of Trade today.

Wheat and soybeans led the upturn, supported by a steady stream of commission house orders. All wheat deliveries made new highs and at one time everything sold above the $2 level.

New highs also were made by May and July soybeans and July, September and December corn.

Lack of moisture in the southwest, raising fears of serious crop damage, gave wheat its main support. Small country offerings of cash grain helped the advance. Soybeans spurred in line with high prices for crude vegetable oils. Other cereals followed the leaders.

• The Church Goes on Ahead

By ROY L. SMITH

One of the most significant facts brought out during the war was that the Christian church had gone on ahead.

Literally hundreds of times American aviators shot down in the Pacific, and drifting to some tiny little island in search of safety, found themselves welcomed into villages that were well kept, happy, and peaceful, in striking contrast to the villages with which they were surrounded. A little investigation always revealed the fact that some missionary had made the difference.

Long before the merchants or traders arrived the missionary put in his appearance with his Bible, his hymns, and his sympathetic ministry. And transformations always followed.

Responsible For Our Environment

A little congregation of Christians had come together in the imperial capital of Rome. No one knows who the preacher may have been under whom they were converted, nor who the genius may have been who instructed them in the faith. But by the middle of the first century they had become famous throughout the world for their integrity and the purity of their faith.

It was of the utmost importance that a strong Christian church should stand in the world's capital as evidence of what the Christian movement really was. The Roman government was highly suspicious of any enterprise that seemed to have empire-wide ambitions, and the whole of Christianity had to rest its case with those Roman Christians. If they stood the test, then every church in the world was a little safer.

At that time any community will ever know about Christianity will be that which it learns from the church in its midst, and if the Christians in your city fail then the Church itself has failed.

Going Ahead is Dangerous Business

It is always dangerous to go on ahead of the crowd. It is so easy to become the target of all those who profit by conditions as they are.

The Sunday School Lesson for March 26: "The Church in Rome," Romans 1: 1-15; 15:22-29; 16; Acts 27-28; Philippians 1:12-20; 4:22.

Those who first argued for prison reform had to endure the persecution that falls on those who go ahead of the crowd. So also those who first argued the case against human slavery. Brave souls in England who arose from penitential altars to raise their voices against child labor found themselves labelled and libelled.

Doing Something Practical

A preacher's son, about 16 years of age, was discussing with his father the subject of his life's work. "I know I do not want to preach," the youngster said. "I have listened to you cry out against the evils of this town as long as I can remember, and I can't see that you have accomplished anything. I want to do something practical."

"I wonder why young fellows like you want to do something practical," the clergyman replied, looking out of the window as he spoke.

"Why," said the boy. "I don't see how anyone could listen to you and not want to do something practical."

"Then I guess my ministry has been rather practical, if it has convinced my own son that he ought to do something about the evils I have cried out against." And the preacher went on looking out the window while his boy thought the matter over.

The Church in Rome

The Church in Rome faced a responsibility that the Church in Thessalonica knew little about. Of course the Thessalonian Church also had a responsibility.

If there is an area about any church out of which juvenile delinquents come, then the church in that area has a primary responsibility. A wave of lawlessness is an indictment against the church as surely as if the neighborhood were atheistic.

Minority churches—churches which work among minorities—are under a solemn charge that does not rest upon those which represent the majority, but churches face a responsibility from which the minority churches are free.

There is not a church in your community that does not labor under a special obligation to go on ahead into some area of need.

(Copyright 1950 by the International Council of Religious Education on behalf of 40 Protestant denominations.)

To Make Plans

Supper Meeting

Set for Tuesday

Plans for the future, including possible projects, are to be discussed by the Friends of the Land when they get together at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roy E. Wipert Tuesday evening for a covered dish supper.

That is the word passed along by the organization's secretary, Ralph R. Penn, in a letter to the members notifying them of the meeting.

The program committee, the secretary pointed out in his letter, had a meeting recently to map out a program, but after an evening of discussion, decided to call a meeting to give all of the members a chance to express their opinions. The views of the members, the secretary implied, would be used by the program committee as a guide in planning for the future.

Penn emphasized that "every-one interested in conservation is cordially invited" to attend Tuesday evening's meeting.

He pointed out, too, that "one thing the Friends of the Land never do is insist that those attending the meetings be members." He added, however, that "of course we like new members, but the purpose of Friends of the Land is to get the American public conservation-conscious, . . . so we extend an invitation to all."

The secretary made one suggestion: that those planning to attend, telephone Mrs. Wipert so tables can be set up.

The Wipert home, the letter said, is on the CCC Highway eight miles west of Washington C. H.—the last house in Fayette County on the right (or north) side of the highway.

Our Tax Inequities Need Careful Revising

Credit is due the county auditor and the county budget commission for quickly taking hold of a bad tax collection situation here and whipping it into shape to meet the general demands of the State Board of Tax Appeals.

This will mean that the county can get money on which to operate before the county treasury is milked completely dry, even if some has to be borrowed before real estate collections start in May.

If the overall demands of the state board in reappraisal valuations are met, it is probable that the state authorities will approve the abstract for the tax duplicate in ample time.

There is still an important job in this situation which should be done.

One of the chief criticisms of the state authorities will not be remedied by a general raising of new tax valuations as a whole; there should be correcting of many inequalities in these valuations.

The state board's brief investigation here, its officials say, showed many inequities among these valuations, especially in rural sections of the county. Nor was the city valuations of real estate by any means free of certain injustices.

This can be corrected for future collections if our county tax authorities see fit to do so. We are glad to note that the county auditor says he proposes to follow this up.

Probably two competent men, assigned to see that such remedial changes are made, with fairness to all concerned, free from pressure or influence, political or otherwise, could just about do this in a year's time. This would cost some money but it is probable that enough increases, where deserved, and some reductions where justified, would result in enough additional taxes to pay for this effort. No individual taxpayer would feel much of this cost, but more important, the tax valuations could be made fair to all concerned.

According to the rates set up by the county budget commission there will be little increase in taxes against property. Rates in most subdivisions were reduced in proportion to higher valuations.

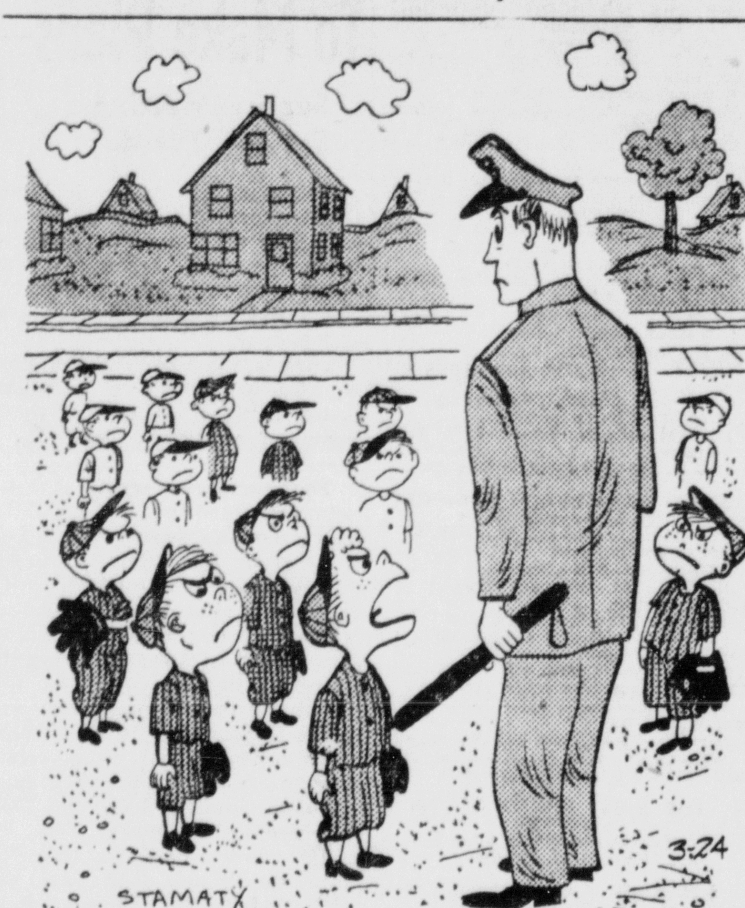

There are few property owners who will object to fair valuations. They do object to paying part of some other property owner's taxes, and this is what happens when valuations are inequitable.

There is no solution in merely pointing out that any taxpayer can go before the local tax appeal board and ask for his valuation to be cut if he thinks it is too high. No one such individual will, or can, take the time to hunt up and point out inequities except in a few cases. Most people never look up their valuations. They depend upon their officials to make them right.

It is the business of our taxing officials to see that these valuations are fair; that valuations on buildings or other property not properly listed are corrected. In any reappraisal there are certain to be some errors. To put all property owners on a basis of fair payment requires time and effort but this is a definite responsibility of our taxing officials and should be done.

Doing the job thoroughly and right will be a worthwhile accomplishment.

Diet and Health Depressed Patients Helped by New Drug

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.
AS studies of the new wonder drugs, ACTH and Cortisone, go forward, we are finding more and more possible uses for them. Cortisone is made in the laboratory, while ACTH is formed in the body by the pituitary gland.

They are currently being tried for patients whose chief symptom is mental depression. This new trial results from the effects observed when they were given to persons suffering from rheumatoid arthritis. The drugs not only banished swelling and inflammation of the joints in these people, but also brought about a more cheerful mood.

Gloomy Patient
It was found that the gloomy patient who got a dose of ACTH or Cortisone in the afternoon would be found vigorously straightening up her room, rearranging clothing, and carrying out similar household duties when the doctor came for his evening visit. The effect of the drug brings something more than a feeling of well-being. It seems definitely to overcome any feeling of depression and to drive the "blues" right out the window.

It would seem that the results of ACTH and Cortisone are about the same insofar as relieving arthritis is concerned. ACTH is a gland product which comes from the pituitary gland of hogs located at the base of the brain. Its extract works by stimulating the action of the adrenal glands which are located above the kidneys. Cortisone is produced directly by the adrenal glands. However, it has been possible to make it chemically outside of the body but the amount obtained in this way is quite small since a long chemical process is necessary to make it. Furthermore, it is made from acids in the bile, the supply of which is limited.

Six chemical substances, similar to Cortisone, and called steroids, have also been tested in treating arthritis, but none has been found effective.

Rheumatic Fever
It is of interest to note that rheumatic fever seems to be benefited by Cortisone, but continued studies will be necessary before a positive statement can be made concerning the exact results.

The kind of arthritis known as osteoarthritis, in which there is an overgrowth of the bone around the joints, is not as yet benefited by either the ACTH or Cortisone. Patients with arthritis should not sit around waiting for Cortisone or ACTH to become plentiful. There is much that can be done by known methods such as diet, heat, and drugs, to give them relief, whereas the delay in having treatment may result in permanent deformities of the joints.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
A Reader: Will worry cause dizziness, pain in back of head, weakness, pallor, and loss of weight?
Answer: Worry might be a factor in causing all of these symptoms. However, it is more likely that they are due to some disease which is actually present.

Why Not Get Coat of Suntan In Grounds of Your Own Home?

Sunshine is precious; it uplifts the spirits, it is necessary for good health to adults and children alike, it is vital to plant growth, and is the greatest enemy of decay in buildings.

Thousands of Americans migrate every month to those sections of the country which enjoy a maximum of sunshine; and millions spend their vacations at seashore, desert, or mountain resorts, where they can soak up sunshine and return home with a good coat of sun-tan.

No wonder, then, that a movement is spreading in localities where sunshine is not so plentiful, to make sure that every bit there is has uninterrupted access to homes and their occupants. Why, we wonder, did so many Americans of the recent past, surround their homes with dense plantings of trees and shrubs, so that no sun could reach their houses, and they were obliged to travel to less shaded places in order to enjoy the sun?

It is difficult to answer this question except with the one word: Fashion. It was the fashion to overplant the home grounds.

This practice is now outmoded, its departure hastened by modern house design. Built for comfort and enjoyment, new homes discard traditional styles in favor of design for efficient living. Sunshine is invited into the house through large glass areas, and an intimate relationship is sought between the rooms of the home, and the grounds surrounding it.

Full use of this outdoor home area is required and use must be the first consideration in planting the grounds. Nothing should be planned which would interfere with use, yet the house should be provided with an attractive frame, to enhance its beauty.

For modern houses, with no visible foundations, flower borders provide a delightful setting. They cast no shade, but reveal in the sunshine, which has uninterrupted access to the house. Their beauty may be enjoyed from within the house, through the picture windows, and by passersby, as well.

A planting of low growing flowers in color masses, as suggested by the illustration, gives an attractive setting for a small ranch house. The varieties suggested bloom all summer with little care, and can be grown from seed at small expense.

Foreign Bases Planned by US

WASHINGTON, March 24.—(AP)—The U. S. military forces are embarking upon a huge building program at bases outside the continental United States, especially in Alaska.

This can be seen from the fact that they propose to spend on these bases about $239,400,000 of the $665,000,000 they are asking Congress to authorize for military public works.

An analysis of the requests shows that the army, navy and air force are joining in the major objective. The idea is to safeguard the United States from a sudden "sneak punch," possibly with atomic weapons.

The announced bases that will be strengthened range from Alaska to Okinawa, Hawaii, Kwajalein and Johnston Island in the Pacific to Bermuda in the Atlantic, up to Labrador, over to the Azores, Libya and Saudi Arabia.

Trapped Sea Lions To Be Freed from Pool Under Plant

REDONDO BEACH, Calif., March 24.—(AP)—Neighbors finally complained about the constant barking coming from the southern California Edison Co. steam plant here.

Barking from a steam plant? That's right, and it wasn't dogs, either. It was sea lions. Seems that three sea lions had been trapped for months in an underground pool at the plant that connects with the ocean through a 1,100-foot conduit. Ocean water is used to cool condensers in the plant.

Darcy McBride, a marine expert, was commissioned to capture the noisy prisoners that had gotten into the pool through the conduit but couldn't get out because of a strainer on the outgoing pipe.

Two were captured in nets yesterday when they went to sleep on a raft used by workmen to make repairs, McBride reported. He and his helpers are still trying to get a third one still in the pool. McBride said one of those captured was a 250-pound male known to have been in the pool for a year. He said the captive animals had plenty of food because fish also reached the underground pool through the conduit.

A good pecan tree will last at least 50 years.

Yes, It's Really a Woman's World

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK — (AP)—This is a woman's world, and for a good reason. Women are better adapted to live in it.

Let us take a simple case. George Washington's father finds one of his favorite fruit trees freshly axed. Very wrath he looks up his son and asks: "Did you cut down my cherry tree?"

Taxed directly in this way, the young father-to-be of his country says: "Yes, I did it with my little hatchet."

But suppose George had wanted to brag on it out. And said, "no, sir!" His face would have flushed red, his eyes have turned shifty and he'd instantly have given himself away. And pappy Washington would have put the cane to his pantaloons.

Suppose, however, the same incident had happened to Martha Washington when she was a girl.

"Did you chop down my cherry tree?" Demands her father.

"My did someone chop down your nice tree, daddikins?" says she. "What'll happen around here next?"

"What I want to know is — did you cut it down with your little red hatchet?" asks father crossly.

"Oh, daddikins, you know I painted my little hatchet green last week."

"Well, never mind that. Did—"

"Why daddikins!" exclaims Martha. "Look, there's a button off your new waistcoat."

"Is there?"

"Yes. Now you come into the mansion right this minute, and I'll sew another on. I don't know what would happen, daddikins, if I weren't here to take care of you."

And helpless daddikins would be led by Martha from the scene of the crime and forget all about it. He would know in his heart that she had cut down the tree, but he would never bring up the matter again.

These two incidents show a basic difference between the adjustment of men and women to any situation.

You will note that young George not only confessed the deed—he named the weapon. Little Martha, on the other hand, not only refused to give a yes-or-no answer. She changed the subject, and got her questioner to think she was doing him a favor in the bargain.

And this art of confusing the issue has developed by women into a great feminine asset over the centuries. Originally, when men were a strutting dominant sex, the girls developed this talent as a means of escaping responsibility when charged by the boy friend with doing something he didn't like. By wheedling, placating and cajoling, by pretending to be a flighty thoughtless thing, woman managed to make the sexes equal. Men felt sorry for such seemingly brainless creatures.

Today man and woman are pretty equal under the law. But the girls have retained their great social weapon of the past — this fluid ability to evade being pinned down or blamed.

A man, however, is still caught in the old jungle code of straightforward answers. He's a poor dissembler, a lousy liar. Men will do things they don't want to, because they don't know how to get out of them. That is why you often see them at cocktail parties, standing with one foot in the air and a lost look on their faces.

You can't trap a woman in this way. She refuses to commit herself except to get what she knows very well that she wants. Language isn't to her a means of expressing herself so much as a medium to explore her own desires until she finds out what she really does want. She is a kind of verbal broken field runner.

In dealing with men she has learned that if she talks to them long enough in her artfully vague way, they will succumb to a hopeless feeling, and crumple to her will.

Yes, it's a woman's world. It's a civilized world that woman talked men into—and men can't talk their way out of, because most of the time they no longer know what anybody is talking about, particularly women.

Problems of State Department

By George Sokolsky

Never before has the State Department been attacked as violently as during the past ten years. The attacks did not begin with Senator McCarthy of Wisconsin, nor will they end with his current reports. The attacks began really in 1933 when we recognized Soviet Russia.

They were intensified with the startling "Amerasia" case, in which 100 files from the state and other departments were found in the offices of this left-wing magazine in which was also situated photographing equipment. That case was hushed up.

Those interested in the infiltration of the highest level of government by known communists, whose party membership could not be proved without their consent, continued to dig into the record. While much was discovered, little could be established, for what these men were engaged in was a conspiracy, internationally directed.

Their trail might be uncovered, but it could not be established by the rules of evidence applicable in a court of law. Only when they fumbled, or when one of them broke from the crowd, and stated facts under oath, was it possible to publish the already known facts. The principals in this business, such men as George Mink, J. Peters, Gerhart Eisler and others whom even now I cannot name with provable evidence, were clever, trained men.

The most damaging contribution to the subject has thus far been made by John Peurifoy, deputy under-secretary of state in charge of administration. His statement should have shocked this nation. When Maximilian Harden, the German journalist, called attention to a similar camarilla in the Kaiser's Court, involving Prince Eulenburg, it shocked and astonished the world. Yet, in this generation, in the United States, a charge that 91 employees of the State Department were dismissed for being homosexuals passes with little excitement.

Perhaps the reason is that the word, homosexual, is considered bad. It is not the word that is bad: it is the consequences of the deed that law the individual open to blackmail. He is ashamed; he is frightened; he has become accustomed to secrecy, conspiracy, lying. He is always subject to blackmail.

Mr. Peurifoy said, in giving the figure 91:

"Most of them were homosexuals. In fact, I would say all of them were."

Of course, Mr. Peurifoy withheld the names of these persons and therefore it is known what positions they held. For instance if a homosexual held such a position as under-secretary of state, or assistant secretary or as sensitive bureau chief, the menace to the United States would be that if the espionage services of a foreign power or a worldwide conspiracy got at him, he would have three alternatives: 1. To resign yet to risk exposure; 2. To submit to blackmail and become a spy for a foreign power; or 3. To commit suicide.

I am dealing with this problem not from a moral but from a practical standpoint. There are some persons who excuse the homosexual on the ground that he was born that way. Others become involved in Freudian Jargon and explain this phenomenon as due to a variety of causes. From our standpoint, it is merely a question as to whether a person whose conduct lays him open to blackmail is a good security risk.

Now, in all the arguments on the subject, those who defend the State Department and attack Senator McCarthy miss two points:

1. Our foreign policy has been wrong since 1943 (Teheran) because it was controlled by a foreign power, Soviet Russia. Dean Acheson's speeches in San Francisco must be read as a condemnation of these policies; otherwise they have no meaning.

What part did these homosexuals, subject to blackmail, play in the formulation and conduct of those erroneous policies?

2. Whereas some of the rest of us may be as black as heart as Al Capone, those in the State Department must be as pure in mind and purpose as driven snow. For that department gathers the data, formulates the policies, lays down the techniques, short of war, for the defense of our country in times of peace and war.

A liar, advantageously stationed: a blackmailed creature in a sensitive spot: a frightened soul, caught in the web of conspiracy, can produce such a result as the conquest of China by Soviet Russia by consent. There is the menace.

The Nation Today

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON, March 24—(AP)—Now it's up to the supreme court to decide: Is the president's loyalty program constitutional in the way it's being carried out?

The program's purpose is to fire government employees found to be disloyal or whose loyalty is considered questionable. Take the case of Miss Dorothy Bailey.

She worked in the U. E. Employment Service. Her work was satisfactory. And her job did not involve national security. It was a so-called "non-sensitive" job.

As part of the loyalty program, the FBI investigated her and turned its information over to the loyalty board set up to carry out the program.

The board notified Miss Bailey it had been informed she at one time was a Communist party member. She denied this and protested she was entirely loyal to the United States.

She was allowed to appear at a hearing before the board, to bring her lawyers, and to produce witnesses who testified for her.

But—she was not allowed to know where the board got its information. Nor was she allowed to see or know her accusers. Therefore, she was denied the chance to question them.

She was fired because, the board said, there were "reasonable grounds for belief that Miss Bailey is disloyal to the U. S." She appealed to the U. S. District Court here. She lost.

Then she appealed to the next highest court, the U. S. Court of Appeals here. She lost in that court yesterday. She has one more appeal left—to the Supreme Court, which will be asked to give the final word on whether the loyalty program procedure is right.

The opinion of the three-judge appeals court was not unanimous. Two of the judges—E. Barrett Prettyman and James Proctor—upheld the loyalty procedure. The third judge, Henry W. Edgerton, disagreed.

The majority opinion covered 22 pages. Edgerton's dissent took another 10. The two opinions covered many points. Some of them very technical. There's room here for explaining only one.

The majority opinion, in brief, said no one can claim working for the government as a right. There's nothing in the constitution guaranteeing anyone a government job. Therefore—

Since a person has no right to a government job, the president can fire him from a government job without explanation at all, if that's the way the president wants it.

In other words, since no right to a job is involved, no right is taken away even if he's fired without seeing his accusers or knowing precisely of what he's accused.

But suppose the individual—in this case, Miss Bailey—is injured in this kind of situation, particularly at this time when being tagged with "communism" may mean real hardship for the accused.

As to that, the court said, with world conditions as jittery as they are and communists trying to infiltrate the government, an individual may be hurt but the government—meaning the public interest—comes first.

But Judge Edgerton said Miss Bailey's interest and the public interest, instead of being in conflict, coincide. Why? Because there was no record offered the court to prove Miss Bailey was disloyal, and—Since dismissal from the government on disloyalty grounds is a punishment, she should have been given full protection of the law. That is, a procedure, or trial, where she could face her accusers and be given the chance to refute them, if possible.

While a person may have no right to a government job, the judge argued that in this country a person, before he's punished,

Rocky Fork Dam Project Pressed

State May Take over If Funds Refused

That long hoped for outdoor recreation spot within comparatively short driving distance of Washington C. H. is daily drawing nearer a reality. At least, the prospects keep getting brighter.

Gov. Frank J. Lausche has repeated that Ohio should build the dam across Rocky Fork Creek in Highland County near the Seven Caves with state money if the federal government refuses to go along with the project.

Baldwin Rice, who lives on his farm down on the southwestern edge of Fayette County, is a member of the state Wildlife Commission which is expected to have a part in some of the phases of development of the area if the project is carried through to completion.

The governor gives no hint of when he feels the time for the final decision on the project should, or would, be made.

However, if the dam is built, it would back up a sizeable artificial lake that would be surrounded by wooded hills.

It would be in such a rustic setting as this that the recreation area would take form over a period of years under government supervision. Besides the fishing, there would be the trails through the woodlands and the wildlife as an attraction to the lovers of natural beauties and the outdoors.

Funds Are Asked

Gov. Lausche, some time ago, asked the Senate appropriations committee of Congress to transfer to the Rocky Fork project $519,000 originally marked for a Big Walnut dam near Columbus. The city now plans to build by itself.

Recently the governor wrote the federal budget director about the transfer. He said it was needed to make Rocky Fork a multiple-purpose dam providing flood control, water and recreation facilities. Without federal aid, the dam would supply only recreational facilities, he explained.

He reminded the director that the federal government spent does have a right to a fair trial. He didn't think Miss Bailey had one.

Board and Room

By Gene Ahern

some $3,700,000,000 for flood control between 1936 and 1949, but Ohio got only $54,511,000 of it. He said state and local subdivisions spent $42,660,000 of their own money on those projects during the same period.

Ohio has purchased 3,500 acres for the Rocky Fork project and the governor said he wants it completed with or without federal help.

Ohio Fuel Gas Co. To Get More Gas

The Ohio Fuel Gas Co., which furnishes gas to the Dayton Power and Light Company for distribution in this city and locality, is to receive 25,000,000 cubic feet more gas daily from the Panhandle Eastern Pipe Line Co.

This is included in increased gas planned for distribution in Ohio by the Panhandle Co. it was disclosed at a power commission hearing in Washington D. C. last week.

In all the company plans to boost gas delivery in Ohio from 50,000,000 to 60,000,000 cubic feet daily.

The firm, which supplies gas to Texas Eastern Co. lines, as well as to other concerns, has agreed to increase its deliveries to the East Ohio Gas Co. by 25-000,000 cubic feet daily, and to boost it to 35,000,000 if possible. The Power Commission can say how much gas the company can sell to one customer.

The Panhandle Co. recently completed a 26 inch line from Texas to Ohio, ending near Lebanon.

The Baptist World Alliance was also announced to be held in Cleveland in July and the president urged the members to attend these meetings. Mrs. Wesley DeWeese read an article entitled "Citizenship", and the nominating committee for new officers was appointed.

Miss Metta Graves as chairman, Mrs. Walter McLean and Mrs. F. T. McCarty will choose these officers and report at the next meeting.

Special activities of the society during the month included 69 calls made on members of the church congregation.

Class Members Have Mr. Hawk As Guest Speaker

The regular meeting of the Golden Rule Class of the Bloomingburg Methodist Church was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Knisley Thursday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Looker as assisting host and hostess.

The meeting was called to order by the president Mrs. Wells Reinohl and devotionals were in charge of Mr. Glen Earl Davis Jr.

During the business session it was decided to make contribution to the church debt and it was decided to organize an adult choir for the church.

Mrs. Mary Helsel introduced the guest speaker Mr. Donald Hawk, who gave a most interesting talk on life in the rural districts of Honduras Central America, where as a missionary he helped teach the inhabitants to read and write during his two years residence there with Mrs. Hawk, and their two children.

He spoke of the intense heat and drought there, and of the pitiful conditions in that country, where he with his family expect to return in the fall to continue his work.

Following his interesting talk he graciously answered the many question asked by the appreciative audience.

A social hour followed during which tempting refreshments were served by the hosts and hostesses to the 35 members and guests.

Starched white pique or linen collars are important accessories for spring. They are worn on plain dark dresses or suits, and may freshen up an old outfit.

Matching mother-daughter aprons encourage cooking lessons, and add a gate note to the kitchen. They may be made from remnants of bright cotton fabric such as plaid gingham or prints.

Potatoes keep best when stored in a cool, dark, well-ventilated place. The temperature should be above freezing but not too warm.

Strevey to Talk At Conference

Health Education Will Be Topic at TB Confab

J. Paul Strevey will speak on health education before a gathering of tuberculosis and health representatives from 15 Ohio counties on April 4 at Jackson, Ohio.

This announcement came today from the Ohio Tuberculosis and Health Association office in Columbus.

Strevey, executive-secretary of the Fayette and Highland Counties Tuberculosis and Health Association, will draw from his experiences with the teachers' training program being conducted in Highland County.

There are 92 teachers enrolled in the in-service training program in Highland County, the largest program in operation in Ohio.

The teachers receive college credit for attending sessions on a variety of subjects for two hours a week throughout the 16 weeks of the course.

Topics presented to the teachers have dealt with hearing, dental care, mental health, housing, nutrition, boy-girl relationships, nursing and others. Consultants have been brought in to speak on these subjects. F. Cameron, health education coordinator at Miami University, is in charge of the program.

Fills Great Need

One of the prime purposes of this training is to fill a long-standing gap in education that exists in most school systems.

School officials in Fayette County are considering the adoption of a similar plan here.

The meeting at which Strevey will discuss the health education topic is one of six district conferences sponsored by the state TB association.

This work is financed by the annual sale of Christmas seals, with about $1,400,000 being collected during 1949-50. Of the money collected 87 per cent remains in the county where it was raised, to be spent for tuberculosis control and public health.

Representatives from the local, state and national organizations will attend the Jackson meeting. John A. Louis, of the state TB association, will speak on evaluating the program of the local association. Another talk will be given on case-finding programs and another on financing county TB programs.

From the national scene, Miss Ruth Harris, a member of the Program Development staff of the National Tuberculosis Association, New York City, will explain how formation of groups of community agencies into a single planning group will provide more extensive and better-coordinated health programs for the entire community.

GI Education Approaches End

Entrance Deadline Set for Next Year

WASHINGTON—The Veterans Administration (VA) has warned veterans that the gate to education and training under the GI bill will be locked July 25, 1951. All inside the program by that date can stay there until their entitlement runs out or until their "course" ends or until July 25, 1956, whichever ever comes first. Most others will stay outside.

One reason for this move undoubtedly was the howl brought on last fall when the VA put out a pre-dated regulation, known as 1-A. Pressure from veterans, Congress and schools forced the VA to withdraw 1-A, although its bad timing was not the only reason. (The strongest objection to it was that it compelled all veterans wanting to change a course to prove the new course was "essential" to employment.)

The VA is taking no chances on the possibility of any veteran's misinterpreting the significance of the July 25, 1951, deadline. In a long report sent to Congress Jan. 25 the VA took six closely-typed, written pages to present its interpretation several ways with regard to that date.

Language in Law

The language in the law goes this way: "... That such course shall be initiated not later than four years after either the date of (a veteran's) discharge or after the termination of the present war,

THE ROMANTIC DUO OF DALE EVANS AND ROY ROGERS, the king of the cowboys, is coming to the State Theater here Sunday in a Trucolor Western movie entitled "The Golden Stallion." Trigger, Jr., the son of Rogers' famous palomino horse, makes his debut in this picture. Also on the program is a film featuring the Three Stooges and a comedy by Laurel and Hardy.

whichever is later." The termination of the war for this purpose is July 25, 1947, so there is no problem there. Four years later is July 25, 1951. (Almost all veterans were discharged before July 25, 1947.)

But what, the VA wondered, did Congress mean by "initiate a course"? It decided it meant that a veteran would have to be in or working on an education or training course by that date (unless he is in a "normal" vacation period, or is sick, etc.) Getting a certificate of eligibility with the intention of entering a course would not do. The course would have to be underway. Nor would this do: Suppose a veteran is taking a college course today. He gets his degree next June and goes to work. He works a little more than a year then decides he needs a course in accounting. So in August, 1951, he goes to the VA and asks

Wrong Impression

He thinks that since he "initiated" a course of study (his college course) long before the July 25, 1951, deadline he certainly has complied with the law and can re-enter training after that date. But he can't. The new regulation forbids it.

That's not all. Once a "course" of study or other training ends after the July 25, 1951, deadline, a veteran will have a very hard time getting into another, even though he can show he was studying or training as the deadline passed by. The regulation says clearly:

1. He is not making satisfactory progress and it's not his own fault.

2. The course to which he wants to change fits his aptitudes and previous education.

3. The new course would be a "normal progression" and would allow him to achieve his educational or training objective.

Salvation Army Unit in Annual Meeting Here

To Meet On Monday;
Truck Here Thursday
To Make Collections

Members of the Fayette County Home Service Unit of the Salvation Army will hold their annual dinner meeting this Monday evening at the Washington Hotel Coffee Shop.

The week will be full of Salvation Army activity as the SA truck will make its regular visit here next Thursday.

Major John Fahey, divisional secretary from Cincinnati and Russell Nance, field director, will be present for the Home Service Unit meeting.

W. J. Hilty, chairman of the county unit, has notified members of the unit here of the Monday meeting.

The main purpose of the meeting, Hilty said, is to review the past year's work and discuss future plans. Reports from the unit's officers will also be heard.

Robert Olinger, secretary-treasurer of the unit, will make a report; Miss Hattie B. Pinkerton will report on children's aid and Hilty will tell of the Christmas work of the Salvation Army here.

Other members of the unit include Hoy Simons, Paul Van Voohis, Dr. Fred D. Woollard, Ellsworth Vannorsdall, George Pensyl, Alvin G. Little, Billie Wilson, Howard S. Harper, Thomas Christopher, Miss Gretchen Darlington and Mrs. Herbert Cockerill.

SA Truck Coming
Meantime, an appeal is being made for unserviceable clothing and household goods so that families in need can be helped.

Each month, the Salvation Army truck has made its rounds in Fayette County and the response here has been more than generous almost every time.

The truck will accept anything you have to offer in the way of household goods. It takes anything because families who are hit by sudden fires, floods or other disasters lose everything—and no one can tell what small, seemingly useless article might help them start over again.

So, if you uncover old shoes, clothing, bedsprings, lamps, or any other household items in your spring cleaning that you can no longer use, call Miss Jean Everhart, at Hilty's office in the courthouse and your address will be given to the Salvation Army next Thursday. Miss Everhart's phone number is 8361.

Upon arrival in the United States where he will be discharged, he plans to return to his former civilian occupation of farming near Washington C. H.

Warn Against Fake Census Enumerators

Sheriff Orland Hays and Police Chief Valden Long today issued statements urging housewives to report to them at once any persons claiming to be census takers who fail to show their official credentials as enumerators of the U. S. Bureau of the Census.

This request was made after a conference with Paul J. Groeber, District Supervisor in charge of the 17th Decennial Census activities in the local area. Imposters posing as census takers are subject to penal action for impersonating a federal official, the census supervisor said.

District Supervisor Paul J. Groeber exhibited a set of census credentials to Sheriff Hays and Chief Long consisting of an identification card bearing the signature of the enumerator and identifying him as an employee of the Census Bureau. In addition, the enumerators will carry with them official printed census forms containing the official census of population inquiries.

If the supposed census taker undertakes to conduct any business other than the collection of official census information, he betrays himself because official census takers are subject to loss of their jobs if they combine their work with other activities such as soliciting donations, selling household goods, distributing advertising material, etc.

Housewives who have reason to believe that they are being imposed upon by a faker are urged by the officers and census authorities to immediately notify authorities and give a description of the suspected individual.

Mistrial Declared In Damage Suit

COLUMBUS, March 24 —(P) Common Pleas Judge Charles A. Leach declared a mistrial in a damage suit yesterday when a juror took the law into his own hands.

That is, the juror put the law—a traffic code book—into his side pocket and walked into the room where the group was deliberating a verdict.

But defense Attorney John M.

Scott spotted the action and protested.

The jury had been out to report it couldn't agree on a verdict after more than two hours deliberation. The judge declared the mistrial after the jurors admitting consulting the code.

The suit for $25,512 damages was brought by John C. Smith of Columbus against Arland Bell of Mount Vernon as the result of an auto collision.

Hope for Japan Rests in Youth

Boy Scouts Lead
Rehabilitation Move

By JERRY O'BRIEN
SPOKANE, Wash.—George Imai, national field secretary for the Boy Scouts of Japan, has enrolled at Whitworth College as a freshman in social work. This is the second time that Imai has been a college freshman but today he's a lot more optimistic about his own and his country's future than he was when he first tried college six years ago.

He was in his second month at a Tokyo university in 1943 when the Japanese draft swept him into a naval officers training school. Then as a 17-year old cadet Imai said he was certain that Japan could not win the war and that he would surely be killed in action.

He says he was so sure that he volunteered to be a Kamakaze pilot "to get it over with."

But the Japanese turned down his request to fly a suicide plane and in May, 1945 he was commissioned an ensign in the Emperor's navy. Before he could be assigned to a ship the war was over.

Imai took off his ensign's uniform and burned it in accordance with occupation orders. But in a few months he put on another uniform—that of the Boy Scouts of Japan and at 23 became the national field secretary.

Imai says the scouting program in Japan is poorly organized but could be a great help in rehabilitation of the country. "The younger generation in Japan didn't have a good education because of the war," he said, "and most of them at present don't care what happens. I want to help remedy this."

He hopes to take executive scout training in New Jersey and in London after graduating from Whitworth and then return to Japan to train future Boy Scout leaders.

Imai first became interested in scouting in Honolulu where he attended grade school and learned English. He recalls that as a member of Honolulu troop 36 he helped form an honor guard for Franklin D. Roosevelt when the late President visited the islands in 1935. When he returned to Tokyo for high school he remained active in Boy Scout work.

Buck Cagers Lose to CCNY

Ohioans' Next Game In Tourney Saturday

NEW YORK, March 24—(P)—City College of New York's ram-paging Beavers and a gang of whirlwind dervishes from North Carolina State University will tangle Saturday night in the eastern finals of the NCAA basketball tournament.

And dapper Nat Holman, coach of CCNY, thinks his National Invitation Tournament champions can take the Carolina Wolfpack, provided they stay hale and hearty.

The busy Beavers came through in one of the greatest basketball games ever played in Madison Square Garden last night, gasping out a 56-55 victory over Ohio State's Buckeyes before a roaring crowd of more than 18,000.

N. C. State's victory over favored Holy Cross in the second game—a methodical 87-74 job by the lean, hard-running wolfpack—was anti-climatic.

Nip and Tuck Game

Ohio State, the Big 10 conference champion and rated the nation's No. 2 college club, and CCNY were just as closely matched as the score indicated. The score was knotted at 40-all after the first half, and it might have been the loss of the Buck's great all-America, 6-5 Dick Schnittker, that provided the final difference.

Schnittker came through with 26 points, but scoring honors for the evening went to Sam Ranzino, a 6-1 forward with N. C. State. Ranzino pumped in 12 field goals and eight charity pitches for 32 points, a new NCAA tourney one-game scoring record.

Holy Cross, badly off on shooting, went ahead of State just once, 20-19 during the first half, which ended with the wolfpack comfortably ahead, 44-29.

Cousy Off Form

Bob Cousy, the Crusaders' all-America ace, had miserable luck in the first half, getting only five points. He sank nine baskets in the second and finished up with 24 points. Matt Forman, 6-4½ Holy Cross center, tallied 19 points. The winner of tomorrow's game takes on the winner of the western NCAA regional tournament for the championship Tuesday night in the garden. Play in the West starts tonight, with Brigham Young tackling Baylor, and Bradley meeting UCLA.

Holy Cross and Ohio State play a preliminary game tomorrow for third place in the East.

Coalmen Stretch Lead in Bowling

Henry's Coalmen moved a little farther out in front in the Industrial League race when they won all three games from the Moore outfit at Bowland Thursday night while the second place Warner Servicemen were losing one to Bob Wise's Clothiers.

The last place Barger Brothers pulled the surprise of the evening when they made a clean sweep of their match with the Jeffersonville Merchants.

The Dairymen won the first two games from the Greenfield team, but dropped the finale.

Four Teams Tied In Second Division

The Kute Kiddies will have to win two games when they roll off their postponed game with the Dairymen if they want to stay in tie with the Thumas at the top of the Merchants League. If they win all three games they can take the lead.

For, the Thumas won two out of three from the Producers in Thursday night's bowling at Bowland while the Kute Kiddies and Dairymen were idle.

If there is competition in the upper level of the standing, there is just as much down in the lower reaches where two teams were tied for last place and two others are deadlocked for sixth before the teams took the alleys Thursday night.

Now all four teams of the second division are in the same boat, so to speak—Pepsi Colas, Pennington Reds, Ohio Bell boys and Pennington Blues each have won 31 and lost 44 games.

Locke Reinstated For Golf in U. S.

CHICAGO, March 24—(P)—Bobby Locke, British open champion, is back in the good graces of the Professional Golfers Association of America and can return to U. S. fairways April 15.

The knicker-wearing South African was reinstated by the PGA yesterday after a nine-month boycott.

The action was taken after receipt of a letter from Locke in which he applied for reinstatement and apologized for dodging several American tournaments last summer.

Rio Grande College Gives Up Football

RIO GRANDE, March 24—(P)—Little Rio Grande College has ended its gridiron hardluck by dropping football indefinitely.

Trustees of the college in Galia County last night cancelled the 1950 schedule they said it was because of the school's poor showing in the sport, and difficulties in financing and scheduling games with teams in their class.

Rio Grande will continue inter-collegiate basketball and baseball. Games cancelled this fall were with Taylor of Indiana, Marietta, Otterbein, Ashland, Assumption of Canada, California, Pa., State Teachers College and Mt. Union.

Staubenville College, which recently dropped football, also was on Rio Grande's 1950 schedule.

Miller City and Eaton Win Class B Tourney Semi-Finals

By FRITZ HOWELL
COLUMBUS, March 24—(P)—The class A kids take over today in Ohio's high school cage tourney, and if they put on a show approaching that of the class B boys it should be a thriller.

Today's program, in the state Fairgrounds Coliseum, sends Garfield Heights (19-4) against Akron South (17-3) in the 2:30 P. M. game, and Mansfield (21-4) against Springfield's Wildcats (16-7) at 8 P. M.

In a pair of classy contests yesterday's Eaton's 1948 champions Miller City's Mighty Mid-jets, only undefeated team boasting 28 straight conquests, won their way into Saturday's class B finals. The payoff game promises to be one of the finest in tournament history.

Eaton won handily over Geneva, 56 to 41, after leading all the way. Gene Neff, Eaton's six-two center and the outstanding player of the first day's play, poured 24 points through the hoop in one of best scoring displays since Criderville's Roger Phillips got 33 in 1941.

The Golden Eagles, connecting on 22 of 60 shots from the field, led 20-10 at the quarter, 29-17 at the three-quarter mark, at which point both coaches decided the issue was settled and sent in their second stringers.

It was different in the Miller City-Corning conflict, for the unbeaten Wildcats came up with as fancy a comeback as the historic Coliseum has ever seen.

Corning's Railroaders, towering the Putnam County Pygmies, looked in the early going as if they'd never read even one of the terrifying press clippings of the Miller City squad. An the Miller City squad looked like anything but world beaters as the Railroaders ran through, over and around a zone defense to build up a 16-8 edge in the first quarter. The Corning lead zoomed to 25-11 soon after the second session started, and with that 14-point edge in the first 10 minutes it looked like a walkaway for Corning.

ing, and the end of the Cinderella team's dream of winning the title in its first attempt.

But Coach C. Norris Simpson, in his first year as a cage mentor, took advantage of a time out to get things straightened out. He pulled out his play book for a "quickie" basketball lesson during the short rest, discarded the zone defense for man-to-man, and sent his little fellows back into the fray.

Drive Gets Started

Each team scored 14 in the second period, leaving Miller City behind 30-22 at the half. Simpson's team started a pressing defense far down the floor as the second half opened — and that was the beginning of the end.

Corning, unable to shake off the smaller opponents who buzzed around their foes like pesky flies, started making miscues, poor passes and fumbling. Miller City, acting as if the David-Goliath act was nothing new, proceeded to now down the Railroaders.

When the third period ended the Wildcats had a 22-point session to their credit. While Corning scored but six— and Miller City was out front 44 to 36. Corning moved up to a 43-46 deficit, but was behind 50-45 at the automatic timeout and was held scoreless in the final two minutes.

Miller City's defense was so sticky that the Railroaders had only 37 shots at the basket, of which they cashed the amazing total of 17. The winners made 20 of 77 shots.

Knitting in Class
Is No Distraction

YELLOW SPRINGS, March 24—(AP)—College girls who knit in class learn about as much as those who don't—and gain a few rows of stitches on sweaters or socks.

That's the conclusion of two co-eds at Antioch College in a psychology course experiment.
Here's how they reached their decisions:

Martha Ann Taylor, a freshman from Richmond, Vt., lectured 30 girls about a mythical south sea island tribe. Half of her listeners were knitters. Then Lois Luskin, Los Angeles sophomore, examined all 30 to see what they had learned.

She found the knitters learned about the same as the non-knitters but that the "professor" was distracted somewhat by the flying needles.

SYNOPSIS
Jenny Maynew keeps house frugally yet graciously for her sister Natalie, a young designer. There's just the two of them since Natalie, their beautiful, imperious sister had left upon large money to marry Fred, her girlhood sweetheart. Fred Evans, long time friend and fellow artist, is expected for dinner. While Jenny realizes she is secretly in love with him.

CHAPTER THREE JENNY COULD SEE THAT underneath Brent's casual manner, as he told of his opportunity, he was deeply stirred. And she knew, as few people could know, just what such a chance meant in the field of illustration. Hadn't her father, Jerome Maynew, been one of America's finest illustrators?
Hain't his family lived with him through each opportunity, each discouragement, each accomplishment?

She leaned toward Brent now, with real inner excitement. "It could turn out to be a big thing, Brent," she said.

"Don't I know it! That's why I'm so anxious to do it right. But I've got to have models; I've got to have special lighting. This job will be going on right into the cold weather maybe, and while I have enough outdoor sketches, and most of my research, I'll need a real studio for the final work."

Natalie said thoughtfully.
"That's right. Your place over Jessup's would never do. Too small. How about the big storeroom he has in the back? The one he never uses?"

"I thought of that, first thing," he said with a rueful smile. "But Jessup has been busy this summer while I was gone. The housing shortage has finally dawned on him, and he's turned the place into a two-room apartment. The people are moving in the first of October."

"Why, I didn't know that," Jenny said with real surprise. In a town as small as Green Ridge, one usually knew everything that was going on. But it had been a hot summer, and she had seldom ventured out unless she had to, happy in her quiet domestic round at home.

"How about one of Hazeline's friends? Couldn't you sublet from one of them?" she asked.

"I thought of that, too," Brent answered her. "But most of them have doubled up already, and none of them is really rich enough to have the sort of studio I'm going to need."

He took a deep breath. "What I'm driving at," he said abruptly,
"is that I'd like to rent working space in your studio, Natalie. For long enough to get this job done.

I wouldn't be underfoot too long.
If it flops, well, that's that. Though they'll pay me, of course. But if it goes over, I'll be able to rent something big for myself."

He looked at the three of them expectantly. Diane, of course, had her own home now, but she still was part owner of the house.
Jenny looked pleased. Natalie—the one who would probably have the final say so, since she was the one who worked in the studio—was thoughtful. It was Natalie whom he watched now.

She said, suddenly aware of their questioning eyes upon her.
"Well, why not? My work doesn't take up so much room, and if I had some help I could cover my things over to one end and leave you the main body of the room.
Everything's scattered about now, of course. But textile designing doesn't take nearly as much space as illustration." She said, on the same breath, "Have you any bad habits when you work?"

"Well, I smoke some, but I don't turn the air blue," Brent said. "And sometimes I whistle.
But you could shut me up in a hurry. I don't know when I'm doing it." He added, "I could pay you forty a month."

Natalie glanced quickly and Jenny nodded. The youngest of the three girls had had charge of the finances by common consent ever since their father's death two years before. If Jenny thought forty dollars was enough, there would be no argument. But Natalie said, "You'd have to supply any fancy lighting that was necessary, although you're welcome to use anything of Dad's that's around."

It was settled. Brent was jubilant. "That's swell! You've no idea what a load this is off my mind!
Now I can really get to work.
When do you want me to move your traps?" he asked Natalie.

"Don't push me!" She held up her hands in protest. "I just sold her designs today to Cochrane's, and there's the chance of a fifth if I make a few alterations. It's rush, so I'll have to have a day or two to finish that."

"Cochrane's!" Brent was admiring. "Say, they're tops! You are getting places, Nat!"

Natalie was pleased at his praise, and the talk drifted into "shop" while Jenny took away the plates and brought in the desert, a fluffy Spanish cream, and the pot of steaming coffee.

"Mmm, that smells good!" Brent interrupted himself to say appreciatively. "Nobody in the world

akes as good coffee as you, Jen!"

Jenny went back to the kitchen in a glow. That was one of the nicest things about Brent. If there was anything at all to compliment you about, he always did it. It was a simple but infallible way of spreading pleasure through the world, she thought now, and one of the naippiest traits that a man could possess.

When she came back into the dining room, Brent had turned to Diane. "Why so quiet tonight, Di?"
he was asking. "Missing Fred?"
Is he away on a trip?"

It was an innocent question and an obvious one. Why else would a new bride be dining at her sister's home without her husband?
But the result was unexpected.
Diane suddenly rose to her feet,
one hand pressed against her mouth.

"I can't talk about it," she choked, and fled from the room.
Brent looked from Jenny to Natalie, and back again.

"What on earth is the matter?"
What did I say?" he demanded.
And then, an awful thought occur-ing to him, he cried, "Good Lord, I've been away so long—I haven't dead, is he?"

Jenny was able to smile at that.
Somehow, it made the facts seem less disturbing. It was only a fallin, out, after all. Nothing unalterable. Nothing as final and conclusive as death. And she could tell Brent—he was practically one of the family.

"It's nothing serious," she smiled.
"They've quarreled."

The morning sun streamed into the living room, rested gently on the polished walnut and mahogany, brought new life to the faded chintz of the curtains, and highlighted the shining brass. It was always a cheerful room but in the mornings it was delightful.

Jenny paused in her dusting to admire the general effect. There was no cold, schematic design here, no charted decorator's plan. The furniture had arranged itself through the years into groups as natural as the people who had used it. Tables and lamps stood where they offered the most light and service; the square, rosewood piano dominated one corner; the walls were hung with pictures, lots of pictures, each one of them with a story and a meaning to the family. It was a friendly room.

When the doorbell rang, Jenny smoothed her ruffled percale apron, left the dustcloth on the mantelpiece, and went with unhurried steps to answer it. It was Fred.

Claims Filed Here Show a Big Decrease

$27,170 Paid Out Here During The Past Month

Ward C. Miller, manager of the Bureau of Unemployment Compensation here stated Friday that during February there were 158 new claims filed in the local office, which was a decrease of 45 percent from the January figures.

Continued claims dropped 10 percent from the January total, he said.

A total of $27,170 was paid in unemployment benefits here during February.

Miller added claimants under the Ohio law with one or more dependents received a total of $1,705 in addition to their regular unemployment benefits.

The 63,053 claims for unemployment benefits filed by newly unemployed persons in the state last month was a drop of 29 percent from the January figure, Bureau of Unemployment Compensation Administrator Frank J. Collopy reported.

Fewer layoffs, rather than the shorter month, was the main reason for the drop, Collopy said. The February volume of newly unemployed claims was the lowest since last September. It was offset slightly by the sizeable increase in Youngstown where steel mills were affected by the coal shortage.

Continued claims, each representing a completed week of unemployment by an individual, dropped 13 percent from January.

The drop in the claims load was accompanied by the Bureau's accelerated speed in making payments. Collopy said the rate of processing jobless benefit checks improved for the second successive month.

still paying WARTIME EXCISE TAXES

on cosmetics, baby oil, handbags, luggage, furs, jewelry and other everyday necessities and minor luxuries when the war has been over for almost five years...

THERE'S A REASON...and here it is

Leaders in Congress and the Administration, itself, repeatedly have stated they would LIKE to repeal some and reduce others of these wartime "nuisance" taxes IF they could find NEW revenue to replace the loss to the Treasury involved in excise tax repeal or reduction.

...and such a replacement is READILY AVAILABLE!

If Congress will TAX THE UNTAXED by placing income tax against more than $3 BILLION in COMMERCIAL profits of tax-exempt businesses that now dodge all or a big part of the federal income taxes now paid by other similar corporations and businesses.

This would produce $1 BILLION IN NEW REVENUE

...more than enough to replace the Treasury loss involved by repeal of many of the wartime excise taxes and reduction of others. This issue is now before Congress—in the Ways and Means Committee. You should tell your Congressman you want this action taken at this session of Congress—NOW! Write him today. Ask him to urge the Ways and Means Committee to give Congress a chance to vote on this issue and eliminate the "nuisance" taxes, replacing the lost revenue by TAXING THE UNTAXED.
